GOVERNOR

The constitution of 1776, which remained in force until 1844, did not provide for an annual message by the Governor. Messages, usually on a specific subject, were occasionally submitted to the Legislature at the beginning of the session, but the first to have the appearance of an "annual message" was that of Gov. Vroom in Jan., 1830. In Feb., 1830, a joint resolution was passed making it the duty of the Governor to address a message to the Legislature at its annual meeting in October. This custom was adhered to, with the exception of 1836, until the adoption of the constitution of 1844, which required the Governor at the opening of each session of the Legislature to submit a message on the condition of the state, [etc.]. The more important of the early [optional] messages are listed below in the serial group.

1805-1904. [Message of the Governor of the state of N. J.]

MILITIA

Only an occasional report of the quartermaster-general was found before 1838, and but few of the adjutant general's before 1846, though the act of Feb. 16, 1811, establishing a militia system, made it the duty of the adj. gen. to lay an abstract of returns from officers of divisions, brigades, etc., before the commander-in-chief of the state [the Governor] who was required to lay the same before the legislature; the adjutant general was also required to make a return of all the militia of the state to the president of the U. S. and to lay his accounts before the legislature at their annual sitting. The same act required the quartermaster-general to lay his accounts annually before the legislature.

There is a record of one report made before the passage of the act of Feb., 1811. Gov. Bloomfield in a message dated Oct. 22, 1805 (Votes of Assem. Oct. 1805: 371-372) transmitted a rept. of adjutant general Hunt "although no law exists requiring it." The rept. is not printed in the Journal.

PUBLIC HEALTH—cont'd

NEW JERSEY

The first ann. rept. of the state board of health 1877 (pp. 6-8) summarizes the efforts in New Jersey in behalf of public health, in substance, as follows; appointment of a state sanitary commission in 1866; no investigating legislation in respect to public health from 1868 to 1873; appointment of a commission in 1874 which was practically a board of health but limited to one year; in reference to the work of that commission, among other things, it is stated that one of the results was a sanitary convention in October, 1875, which led to the formation of the New Jersey Sanitary Association; formation of a state bd. of health in 1877.

B

1 series

It will be noted that the circulars in this series are not arranged in exact chronological order; this is due to the desire to retain the numerical order of the circulars on account of reference to that order in reprints, special lists, etc. Numbers were first assigned to the circulars in a list printed in the 6 ann. rept. of the state bd. of health 1882 : 253-255; the arrangement seems to have been entirely arbitrary, probably following the order in which they appear in the annual reports of the Board; for example, Circular No. 7 is dated June 1, 1880; Circular No. 10, April 1, 1880.

[1878]-1883. Circulars issued by the state bd. of health.
